ABOUT THIS — AND — ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

DISTINCTIVE.—There is a distinctive American character. It crops out here and there in distinctive characters. This distinctive character is not found every day; true, it underlay the spirit that was built into America, but that was before Selfishness Unlimited had grown with an immense population from sea to sea.

TWO OF MANY.—Right now our thoughts are close to two of America's greatest characters, both of that character that is distinctively American. Last week the country slightly observed the anniversary of Father Abe of the war for the liberation of slaves. Come this Sunday, we will, if we are thoughtful, give at least the same slight recognition to the anniversary of the Father of His Country, George Washington.

SLIGHTLY.—We observe slightly because the passing of many decades dulls our interest, takes away our zest for appreciation, dims our hindsight vision, makes us forget the deep and imperishable values represented by the lives and activities of our "ancients." Yet, without the character of these two men, who inherited their character from family environment, yes, but more, likely, from the earthy understanding of a new and inspired nation, we would not have our now-shedding national character as a bolster against destructive influences penetrating our national values.

LINCOLN.—The story of Lincoln's early life is well-known, or was when we were young and in school. Like others of America's stalwarts, Abraham Lincoln was the product of intelligent struggle. His was a "hard" life, according to present standards of living. But, fortunately for you and me, Abe did not know that life for him was hard. You see, he lived THEN, not in our soft day. There were for him so few distractions that he absorbed the honest spirit of the pioneer, he became a part of the moving spirit of endless ages for the acquisition of knowledge; he found in the earth and the sky a fragrance of the sweet smell of liberty as it was known only on these shores of ours at that time. He lived close to America of then, absorbing its character, fashioning his life for usefulness, unfolding a great heart of love, and with it, an American characteristic, an inexorable will where decision had to be made between right and wrong. The best that remains of the then America in our present America is existent because Lincoln, like Washington before him, reflected a character that was distinctively American.

FATHER.—Few men in history so reflected the heart and will of mankind as George Washington reflected the heart and will of the men and women of the United States, or the American colonies, before and after the war. Unassuming, gigantic in intellect, kindly spirited, magnanimous in trait, with better financial and educational background than was to be the lot, later, of Abraham Lincoln, George Washington never "claimed" position. He WAS position. His native American flavor in character was just as natural as was Lincoln's, as it was to many other stalwarts, because he lived a life of devotion to understanding the ways of mankind, of interpreting these ways, in practical translation of them into facilities for mass living. He led the new nation through a destructive war, a war of death and suffering, yet without rancor in his heart, without hatred for the foe. He was a man of supreme character, a native American-flavored character, which happily continues to be a bright spot in our horizon, even though eclipsed somewhat by the shadow of selfishness and strife.

FIRE ROUTES ED KNOWLES FAMILY

Fire interrupted the supper hour of the Ed Knowles family on Busch road, off Francis road, New Lenox township, last Saturday evening at 7:30.

The fire, according to Mr. Knowles, was discovered between the walls as the family sat down at the table. Cause: believed to be from a defective electric wire.

The Knowles lost a considerable part of their furniture and part of the house was destroyed, although three rooms remained undamaged and the family is occupying these rooms. Damage to the building has not been estimated, but will be substantial, it was stated.

Mokena firemen responding to aid the New Lenox department, reported that cars of the curious blocked the road, resulting from a suggestion from fire officials that the public can help by keeping a clear way open at all times for fire vehicles, both ways, since other calls may at any time make it necessary for the fire department to hurry to another place needing assistance because of fire.

SCOUT COURT DRAWS MANY

A large group of parents and friends turned out Sunday afternoon for the court of honor and roundup of Boy Scouts in Mokena. The Girl Scouts and their leaders attended in uniform.

Scoutmaster Riemann presided at the ceremonies, assisted by the troop committee. The Mokena Civic association, which sponsors the Boy Scouts, were represented by their president, T. Lackey. Members of the scout committee and counselors for Boy Scout merit badges were introduced.

Six boys were received into the troop as tenderfoot scouts, Dick Dunham, Richard Gillette, Robert Roth, Bruce Shoop, Lloyd Spiess, and Ralph Stohl. Frederick Rauch and Philip Howell advanced from tenderfoot to second-class rank. They received their second-class pins from T. A. Shoop, committee chairman.

David Carlsen became a first-class scout. T. Eberhard, Eagle scout now living in Mokena, presented Star pins to William Bradley, David Kropp, James Needham, and Steward Shoop. M. C. Geuther awarded 26 merit badges.

At the close of the meeting the boys of troop 40 and the scout committee expressed their appreciation to the Rev. William Riemann for the many hours he gives to the scouting program in Mokena.

As a result of this meeting impetus has been given to the organization of a Cub Scout Pack for boys 9, 10 and 11, and a Senior Scout Outfit for boys over 15.

"I will not be able to spend much time in Will county, getting acquainted with the people of this new part of my district, and therefore must depend upon advertising in the newspapers to make acquaintance with the people. Important legislation pending.

SHADES OF THE PAST TO PARADE IN NEW LENOX P. T. A. SHOW

Income Tax Warning Given by Collector

John T. Jarecki, Collector of Internal Revenue, first district of Illinois, announced this week that of 2,850,000 individual income tax returns for the year 1947, he expects to be filed in his office before March 15, only 700,000 have been filed to date.

He urged that the 2,150,000 taxpayers in the first Illinois district who have not yet filed their 1947 income tax returns do so now and in so doing avoid the period of extreme pressure between March 1 and March 15.

Mr. Jarecki stated that taxpayers who need the assistance of his deputy collectors in the preparation of their income tax returns will have a shorter wait in securing assistance now than will be the case if filing of their returns is delayed.

Scabies, a highly contagious skin disease of cattle, may easily be mistaken for ringworm by inexperienced observers.

Shades of the past will frolic in New Lenox Friday and Saturday nights of this week, according to an announcement by Chairman Mrs. Burton Gillette, publicity chairman for New Lenox P. T. A.

The occasion is the show to be put on at the New Lenox school auditorium Friday and Saturday nights, with proceeds going to the extra needs around the school that are cared for by the P. T. A.

Entertainment will have as its motif old-time movies with modern humorous comment as the movie proceeds.

Added to that will be the old-time barber shop quartette, and although its list of songs has not been made public, it is expected that it will take the real old-timers back to yesteryear in thought and perhaps make some of the younger group wish that they might have lived "30 years too soon."

"Barber Shop" singers will be Theodore Shuh, Rev. Ralph W. Miller, Ernest Hoefler, "Bun Miller," and it is hoped that Stanley Ekedahl will be able to attend and present his magic act.

Then there will be "Ladies of the Bowerly," and believe it or not, their monickers are Tony Pavulka, Sheldon Hauck, Jim McCure, John Eden, Ear Robinson, Darwin Cooper, and it's said they will daintily or otherwise present the "light fantastic"—well, with enthusiasm, perhaps.

There will be a Flora-Dora Sexette, a song and dance by Mrs. Phyllis McCoy, and a dramatic presentation by Dorothy Sheeler, the "beautiful widow," with Robert Gillette the "heartless" villain.

Charles D. Carnahan is to be the boss—beg pardon, the master of ceremonies. P. T. A. officials set the admission so they could get a lot of them, it was said, at the low of 25 cents if you are young enough and 50 cents if you are not.

RELATIVE SOUGHT IN NEW LENOX

A Chicago woman is seeking information of a long-lost relative last known to be in New Lenox, according to a letter received by Mrs. Dolores Anderson, News-Bulletin reporter in New Lenox.

The person sought is Betty Barbara Madsen, about 23 years' old now, according to the seeker, Miss Hertha Madsen, 532 Wrightwood avenue, Chicago 14, who tells of girl's mother remarrying after the death of her husband. The mother married a man named August Anderson, it was stated, and Betty Barbara attended grade school in New Lenox in the middle '30s and perhaps Joliet high school in the early '40s.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Miss Madsen (or Anderson, since she may have taken her step-father's name) should communicate with Miss Hertha Madsen in Chicago.

CHURCHILL AT MARLEY

Wayne Churchill, Will county farm advisor, will address the men at the Marley Farm Life program Wednesday night, February 25, on the subject "Pastures and Pasture Improvement." The ladies will learn the tricks in slip covering. There will be movies for the young folks.

Because Washington's birthday falls on Sunday, the 22d, Monday will be observed by postoffices throughout the area on Monday, February 23, several postmasters announced this week.

No advance announcement was made for Lincoln's birthday closing, it was stated, and many persons were disappointed to find their favorite postoffices closed on that day.

James Needham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Needham of Mokena, was recently awarded the much-coveted medal of the R. O. T. C. at ceremonies held in the Joliet Township high school. He received the medal as being the neatest-dressed member of the freshman class of the R. O. T. C.

TWO FOXES MEET UP WITH NEW KIND OF FOX HUNT ON FARM

Guns, hounds, and steeds no longer need be the tools of fox hunters. That is, if fox hunters care to employ the ingenious methods used by John C. Breitbarth and son Herbert, of 167th and Oak Park avenue, Tinley Park.

The story of the gunless, houndless, and horseless fox (better, foxes) hunt began last Friday, when father and son Breitbarth were doing some hauling on their farm. They saw a fox walking west into the Peter Stamm farm, 167th and Harlem, apparently unconcerned, what with no hunters being out on a busy Monday morning.

Right there began the "chase," albeit a new chase in the terms of foxing.

WHITE-TILSY VOWS SPOKEN

Miss Frances White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Errol White, of Orland Park, became the bride of James Tilsy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tilsy of Orland Park, Saturday afternoon, February 14. The Rev. Thomas Hagood, of Villa Rica, Ga., officiated at the double-ring ceremony at 2 o'clock in the Marley Community church.

Mrs. Edward Sproat was the organist, accompanying Mrs. Russell Lauffer, who sang "O Promise Me" and "Because", and Daniel Sass, who sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a heavy white brocaded satin gown. Tiny satin-covered buttons adorned the front of the fitted bodice. The long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists and the softly gathered skirt possessed a modified train. The bride's fingertip veil was caught up with a love-bird headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Pat DeLis, of Oak Park, wore a blue taffeta gown fashioned with a ruffled bustle. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations matching her headpiece. The bridesmaids were Miss Georgia Bennett of Mokena, Miss Marilyn DeVries of Oak Lawn. Their pink taffeta gowns of Orland Park, and Miss Elsie Elises were styled identically to that of the matron of honor. They carried bouquets of blue carnations which also matched their headbands. All the attendants wore matching elbow length mits.

Tiny Hazel Marie DeLis, was the flower girl. She wore a gown of white veil and carried a nosegay of tea roses surrounded by white carnation petals. Joseph White, brother of the bride, acted as ring bearer. The white taffeta pillow which he carried was made by the groom's sister, Miss Dorothy Tilsy.

Ralph Tilsy served his brother as best man. The ushers were Paul White and Clarence Creer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church dining room for nearly 200 guests. A five-tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table. Mrs. Arthur Lauffer served the wedding cake.

In the near future the newlyweds will reside in their farm home on 167th street.

PUBLISHER IN ROUND-TABLE

Mrs. Margaret Semmler, publisher of The Semmler Newspapers, will be a member of a round-table of newspaper women discussing the weekly newspaper and its place in the community.

The meeting will be held in the club rooms in the Fine Arts building, 410 So. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.

Dr. A. Grossman P. T. A. Speaker

Dr. Arnold Grossman, otologist, University of Illinois, will be guest speaker at the Mokena P. T. A. meeting Tuesday, February 24, at 8 p. m. Dr. Grossman will explain the "hearing survey" to be made by the state and the state's plans to make Will county "the model health county." A sound and color film, "The Right to Hear," will be shown by Mrs. Margaret Emmett, Mokena school nurse from the Will county health department.

Guild Luncheon

The Women's Guild of St. John's church, Mokena, will meet at the church today, Thursday, at 2 o'clock, with a luncheon.

Those serving lunch for the occasion will be Mrs. Louis Lauffer, Mrs. Frank Sievert, Mrs. Elmer Benson, Mrs. A. Benson, Mrs. Rose Bechstein, Mrs. Richard Erickson, Mrs. A. Strassenberg, and Mrs. Harold Spiess, Mrs. Al Braun.

GIRL FOR MASONS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mason of Blue Island, route 2, are the parents of a daughter, Lana Ann, born February 15 at St. Francis hospital, Blue Island. Mrs. Mason is the former Ruth Bettenhausen.

MOURNING KNOWS NO BOUNDS . . . When death strikes a great and loved man the impact is felt around the world. And thus it was when Mohandas Gandhi of India went to his death and martyrdom. Inconspicuous, peace-loving people of every nation mourned his passing because he had transcended bigotry and nationalism to stand as a symbol of peace and reason in an era of strife and blind passion. In the United States, men and women were not too proud to weep over Gandhi's assassination.

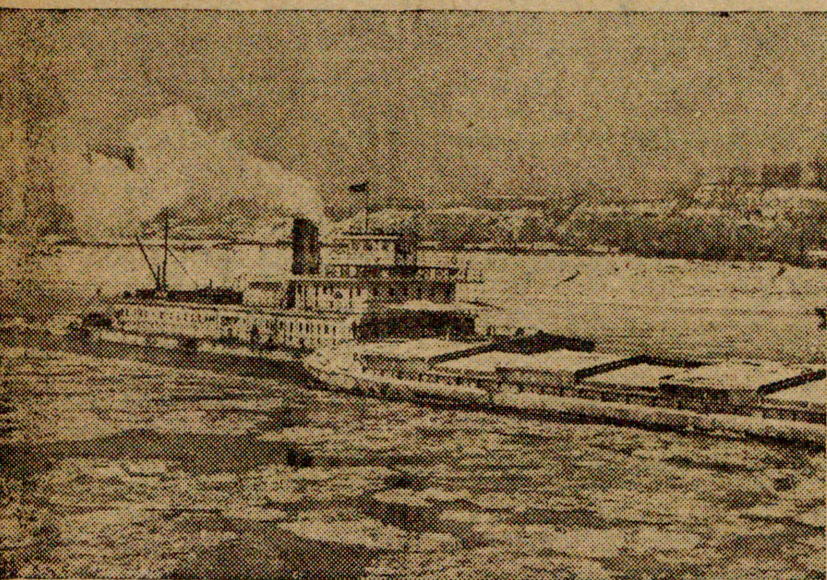

SOUTHERN DEMOCRATS PROPOSE OWN CONVENTION . . . When President Truman proposed a 10-point civil rights program, including such explosive recommendations as elimination of the poll tax in some states and anti-lynching laws, southern Democrats rose in wrath and threatened retaliation. Sentiment was growing in favor of a bolt from the Democratic party. Shown discussing the President's recommendations are (left to right): Democratic Senators Lister Hill of Alabama, W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas, Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana and Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina.

'THE NORTHERN LIGHTS HAVE SEEN STRANGE SIGHTS' . . . In the northern Manitoba gold fields where pioneers pushing back the continent's last frontier take blizzards and 50 below temperatures as a matter of course, the simplest everyday tasks take on a staggering enormity. For instance, in order to get water for washday or Saturday night baths, Mrs. Elbert McRae, at Wekusko, Manitoba, has to melt down a batch of snow over an outdoor fire. Hundreds of feet below her, men are pushing drills into the gold ore of Wekusko gold mine.

RECORD BREAKER . . . Gil Dodds, the "Flying Parson" of the Boston Athletic association, streaked across the finish line to win the Wanamaker mile in Madison Square garden and set new world indoor record for the mile of 4:05.3.

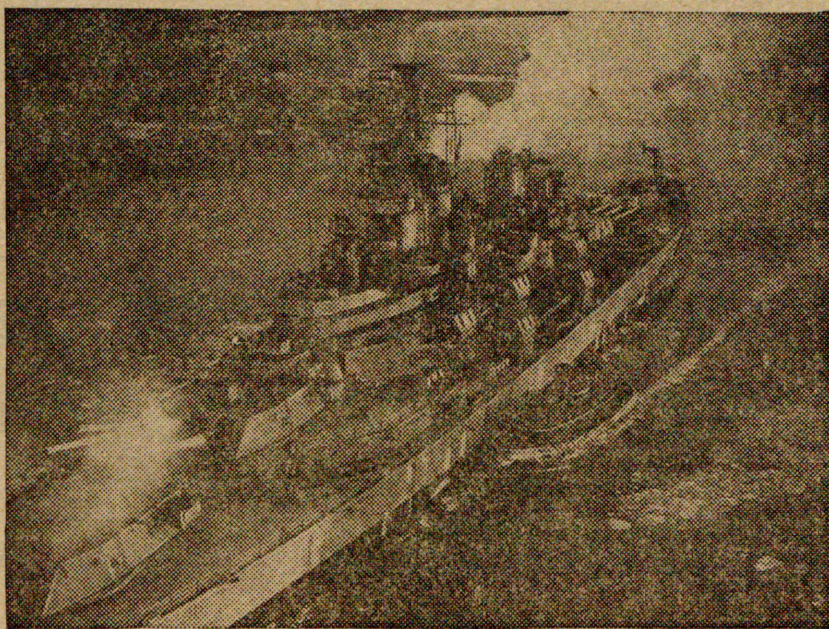

STEAM TRIUMPHS OVER DIESEL . . . The steam-powered Kokoda crosses finish line at St. Louis to win hands down in the 1,051-mile race from New Orleans against the diesel-powered Helena in the Mississippi river "towboat derby." Each towboat started from New Orleans pushing a full load of four barges in the contest to determine whether steam or diesel power is more efficient in river transportation. The Kokoda beat the Helena by more than 200 miles.

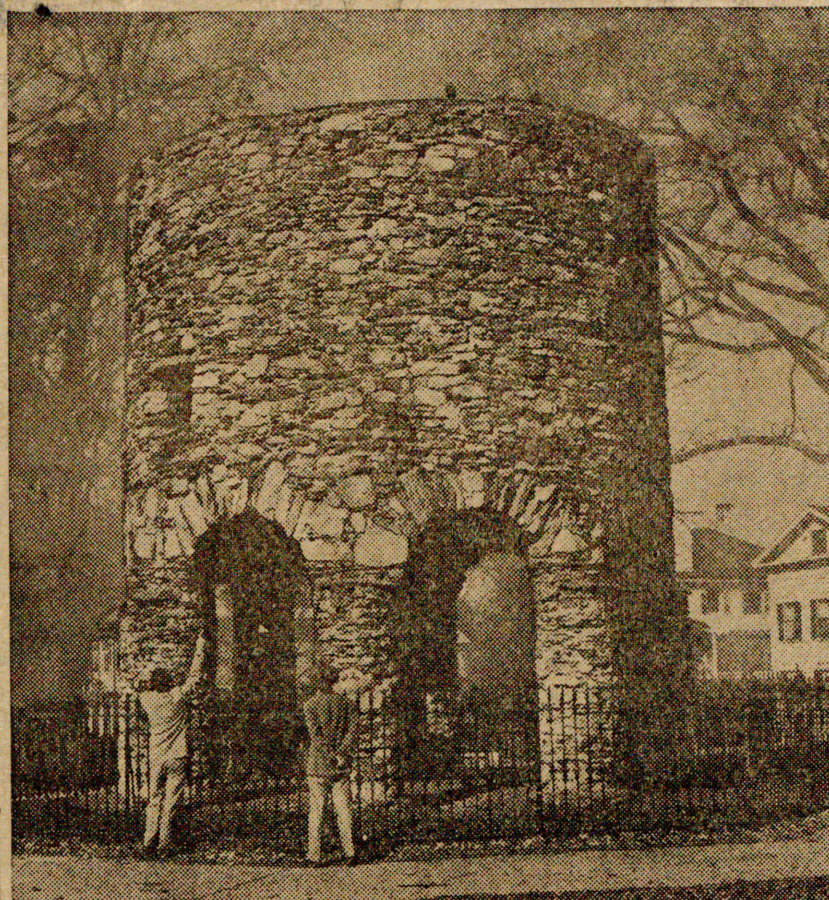

LONG HAUL . . . Mrs. Catherine Dostoyevsky, daughter-in-law of Fyodor Dostoyevsky, great Russian author of "Crime and Punishment," finally made it to Paris after 24 years of trying. She had been living in the Crimea, unable to get out, since the Russian revolution.

WINTER OLYMPICS GET UNDER WAY . . . This is a general view of the ceremony at St. Moritz, Switzerland, marking the opening of the fifth winter Olympic games, as nearly a thousand athletes took the Olympic oath. Bibi Torriani, famous 36-year-old captain of the Swiss hockey team, led the gathering in the oath.

BATTLE WAGON GOES LAST MILE . . . Her fighting days at an end, the USS New Jersey, once ranking among the greatest of American fighting ships, is shown passing down the East river as tugs hauled her from the New York navy yard on her last voyage—an ignominious one in the light of her past achievements. The battleship is bound for Gravesend bay, Brooklyn, to be broken up for scrap.

EARLIEST CHURCH — MAYBE . . . Excavation of this stone structure at Newport, R. I., may prove it to be the earliest Christian church in the western hemisphere. Research now is being undertaken by the Preservation Society of Newport to investigate the claim that it was built by Norsemen more than 100 years before the arrival of Columbus. Counter contention is that structure is simply an old windmill built in the 1660s by Benedict Arnold, then governor of Rhode Island.

AHOY, SHE SEEKS PIRATE GOLD . . . With five maps and accompanying explanations that she is confident will lead her to the treasure, Mrs. Bula E. Croker, widow of fabled Tammany Boss Croker, is looking forward to recovering a cache of pirate gold estimated at 76 million dollars. She says it was buried in the years 1781 to 1783 just 40 miles from Pensacola, Fla. Maps originally belonged to a Spanish sea captain.

SHORTY OUTMATCHES A KILLER

By JOE STEEL

"WELL," I says to Shorty No-Legs, "this is it. You bust it or it busts you."

It was undoubtedly a very tough case. Sheriff Shorty No-Legs would first have to prove it accident or murder. If murder, then he'd have to catch the murderer. And if he failed anywhere along the line he'd have to resign.

But that was the way Shorty—World War I veteran—had asked for it. There had been so many unsolved murders in Dry Creek county that Shorty ran on his word that he would resign whenever he failed to solve a case.

The name Shorty had given when he first came to Scenic City when he came from the fact that he actually had no legs. There were barely enough stumps below Shorty's powerful body to enable him to do what he cheerfully called walking.

"I'm blowing like a winded horse," Shorty said, glancing back over the boulder-strewn way down which he had slipped and slid to where the battered sports roadster and the man's body lay.

Several hundred feet above looped the narrow concrete ribbon of Blue River pass highway. The roadster had been moving on the steep down grade toward Scenic City when it failed to make a hairpin turn and jitterbugged its dance of death down the almost sheer mountainside.

No-Legs mopped his face with a huge bandana and began a painstaking search of the wreckage. There wasn't much. The dead man wore a rather flashy suit. He had on yellow shoes, so new that match scratches in the instep of the left one could plainly be seen. Cigarettes, odds and ends, and a picture of the dead man and a little geezer evidently named "Chick," rounded out the inventory.

"Somebody," said No-Legs, "could have got this guy drunk or drugged, driven him to this curve, headed the roadster for the railing, and stepped out. The pavement wouldn't show any tracks," he added sadly.

"Shorty," I says, "maybe I could carry you pick-a-back back up this mountain." I could see he was ready to leave.

"Yeh," he snorted, giving me a backhanded slap in the midriff with one of his ham-hands. "Me weighing 160 without legs, and you weighing 135 legs and all. You should

"What do we do now?" "Nothing. When you're hunting geese the first thing to do is stay in the blind. Then if they don't fly in to you after so long, you try to crawl up on them. We ain't stayed in the blind long enough yet."

He was right. Soon after dinner a smallish fellow showed up at Shorty's office. He was in hunting togs and would have looked like Little Lord Fauntleroy if it hadn't been for beetling black eyebrows and the vicious looking cigar he was smoking.

"I'm 'Chick' Rhodes," he said, "and I wanted to talk with you about the wreck out on Blue River pass. Heard about it at the cafe."

No-Legs kept Rhodes talking, then finally tossed the picture he had taken from the dead man on to the desk. Three words were under it "Lefty and Chick."

"That's Lefty all right," Rhodes said. "And that's me," pointing to the other figure. "Taken in Chicago just before me and Lefty sold our pool hall and headed for California. Lefty was going to be drafted, and I couldn't run the place myself. Figured maybe I could handle a sandwich stand in California for the duration."

You could never tell from looking at No-Legs what he was thinking. He'd spread his stumps apart, roll his eyes up at your face and stare as unblinking as an owl. He was doing that now. He never seemed to have to ask questions. He'd just wait the other guy out—squeeze him dry with the weight of dead silence.

I could see the pressure on Rhodes. Like everybody else—he'd a lot rather No-Legs would fire questions than just stare.

Forced on the defensive and obviously angry at having to explain further to the legless owl before him, Rhodes started again. "You see, I came out on the train for a deer hunt while Lefty wound up our business. He was to meet me here today and we'd go on together." He ground his conversation to a stop.

No-Legs sure surprised both "Chick" and me with his next move. He twisted his wrist and the big gun in his hip holster moved into Rhodes' stomach. "You're under arrest for murder," he said.

Rhodes soon recovered from his surprise and grinned wickedly. "I

which he had slipped and slid to where the battered sports roadster and the man's body lay.

Several hundred feet above looped the narrow concrete ribbon of Blue River pass highway. The roadster had been moving on the steep down grade toward Scenic City when it failed to make a hairpin turn and jitterbugged its dance of death down the almost sheer mountainside.

No-Legs mopped his face with a huge bandana and began a painstaking search of the wreckage. There wasn't much. The dead man wore a rather flashy suit. He had on yellow shoes, so new that match scratches in the instep of the left one could plainly be seen. Cigarettes, odds and ends, and a picture of the dead man and a little geezer evidently named "Chick," rounded out the inventory.

"Somebody," said No-Legs, "could have got this guy drunk or drugged, driven him to this curve, headed the roadster for the railing, and stepped out. The pavement wouldn't show any tracks," he added sadly.

"Shorty," I says, "maybe I could carry you pick-a-back back up this mountain." I could see he was ready to leave.

"Yeh," he snorted, giving me a backhanded slap in the midriff with one of his ham-hands. "Me weighing 160 without legs, and you weighing 135 legs and all. You should

"What do we do now?" "Nothing. When you're hunting geese the first thing to do is stay in the blind. Then if they don't fly in to you after so long, you try to crawl up on them. We ain't stayed in the blind long enough yet."

He was right. Soon after dinner a smallish fellow showed up at Shorty's office. He was in hunting togs and would have looked like Little Lord Fauntleroy if it hadn't been for beetling black eyebrows and the vicious looking cigar he was smoking.

"I'm 'Chick' Rhodes," he said, "and I wanted to talk with you about the wreck out on Blue River pass. Heard about it at the cafe."

No-Legs kept Rhodes talking, then finally tossed the picture he had taken from the dead man on to the desk. Three words were under it "Lefty and Chick."

"That's Lefty all right," Rhodes said. "And that's me," pointing to the other figure. "Taken in Chicago just before me and Lefty sold our pool hall and headed for California. Lefty was going to be drafted, and I couldn't run the place myself. Figured maybe I could handle a sandwich stand in California for the duration."

You could never tell from looking at No-Legs what he was thinking. He'd spread his stumps apart, roll his eyes up at your face and stare as unblinking as an owl. He was doing that now. He never seemed to have to ask questions. He'd just wait the other guy out—squeeze him dry with the weight of dead silence.

I could see the pressure on Rhodes. Like everybody else—he'd a lot rather No-Legs would fire questions than just stare.

Forced on the defensive and obviously angry at having to explain further to the legless owl before him, Rhodes started again. "You see, I came out on the train for a deer hunt while Lefty wound up our business. He was to meet me here today and we'd go on together." He ground his conversation to a stop.

No-Legs sure surprised both "Chick" and me with his next move. He twisted his wrist and the big gun in his hip holster moved into Rhodes' stomach. "You're under arrest for murder," he said.

Rhodes soon recovered from his surprise and grinned wickedly. "I

"Take him to Doc's," No-Legs said. But we found out, after a long-delayed breakfast, that the Doc didn't find any trace of drugs or liquor on the body.

"Maybe he went to sleep," I said. "Maybe," agreed Shorty. "Now just prove it and I can resume my disturbed slumbers."

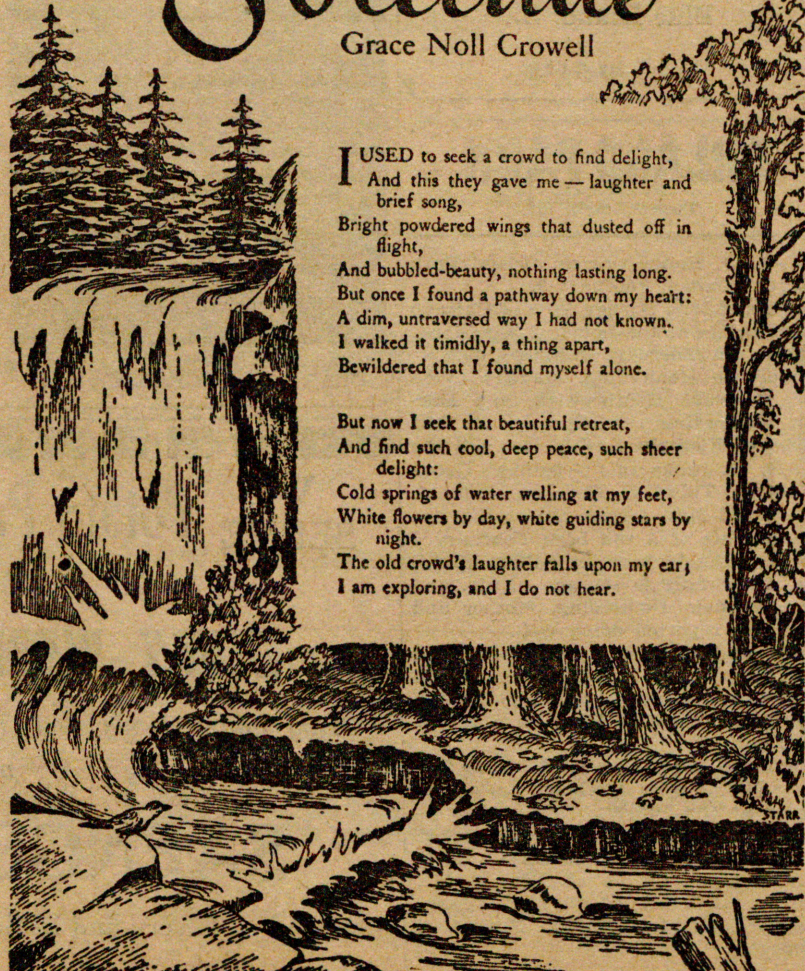

I couldn't, of course. "Who found him?" I asked.

"Doc. Comin' back from a night call over in the hills somewhere and noticed the broken guard rail."

"What do you think?" "I don't," he said. "I ain't got nothing to think on. There's got to be some other angles."

Solitude

Grace Noll Crowell

I USED to seek a crowd to find delight, And this they gave me—laughter and brief song, Bright powdered wings that dusted off in flight, And bubbled-beauty, nothing lasting long. But once I found a pathway down my heart: A dim, untraversed way I had not known, I walked it timidly, a thing apart, Bewildered that I found myself alone.

But now I seek that beautiful retreat, And find such cool, deep peace, such sheer delight: Cold springs of water welling at my feet, White flowers by day, white guiding stars by night. The old crowd's laughter falls upon my ear, I am exploring, and I do not hear.

Metallic Flesh and Bone

Used for Artificial Ears

Metallic flesh and bone made from tantalum are providing new ears and rehabilitating torn nerves and other tissues for thousands of persons, Dr. Clarence W. Balke reported to American Chemical society.

Artificial ears have been grown on frameworks of tantalum wire, and more than 5,000 skull injuries have been repaired with tantalum plates.

Thousands of severed or injured nerves have been made sound again with tantalum foil, and literally miles of wire have been used for surgical sutures, Dr. Balke reported.

Tantalum is called "biologically acceptable" since body tissues adhere to and grow over the metal. Both tantalum and columbium are completely non-irritating to living tissue, and they are not made irritating by pathological or disease conditions within the tissues.

Implants of tantalum gauze are used where muscular or other soft tissue is either milling or has been removed. Final repair of recurrent hernia and closure of abdominal walls after cancer removal are outstanding illustrations.

CUTTING CORNERS IN KITCHEN

Another household timesaver is an electric knife sharpener, designed to put the proper edge on a knife in a matter of moments.

An ash tray, recently invented, is described as providing a break for the non-smoker as well as the smoker. Electrically operated, it draws the ashes—and the smoke—down into its stand.

Get Acquainted with Noah Mason

Noah Mason spent his early life on a farm. He is a college graduate, and has done graduate work in the field of Social Science, majoring in Government, Industrial Relations, and Taxation. Mason has spoken to groups of farmers and taxpayers' leagues in most of the counties of Illinois, and in practically every large city in the State. He is known as a forceful, logical speaker.

Noah is a member of the Oglesby Union Church, has been a trustee of that church for over thirty years, and has been Sunday School Superintendent and Teacher of an adult Bible class for the same length of time.

Mason is a straight-thinking, hard-headed business man, a leader and a doer. He is not afraid to say what he thinks; but you find that he has usually thought things out before he says anything. It is typical of Mason to know what he is talking about.

Congressman Mason was a member of the Illinois State Senate from 1930 to 1936, when he was elected to the 75th Congress. He is now serving his sixth term in Congress. Mason was ranking Republican Member of the Immigration and Naturalization Committee for ten years. He also was an active member of the Dies Committee for six years. He is now a member of the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the House.

Noah is a man worth knowing. You should get acquainted with him. He is very anxious to meet you, to know you, and to serve you. After 17 years in public life -- 6 years in the State Senate and 11 years in Congress -- Mason's word is still good.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT TAXES?

(Note: This is the fourth in a series of articles on taxes by the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois.)
SPRINGFIELD—As a sidelight on the county government services, discussed in last week's article, that are paid for in your tax bill, Maurice W. Scott, attorney for legal research on the staff of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois, is completing a digest of the statutes and court interpretations on all phases of county government. This digest is already around 200 type-written pages long.

Just as every Illinois tax bill includes an amount for county government services, so also every tax bill includes an amount for school services.

There were 11,955 school districts in through consolidations and annexation existence in Illinois in 1945. Changes have been taking place so rapidly that no one knows exactly how many school districts there are today. However, the best estimate is that the number has been reduced to approximately 9,755. In Brown and Scott counties, all solidated into one school district in of the school districts have been con-each county.

In connection with the consolidation of school districts, property owners should be aware that there is a serious problem concerning outstanding bonds which can only be levied by the Illinois supreme court. One school of thought says that bonds voted by a school district remain an obligation against the property within that school district at the time the bonds were voted, which must continue to pay for the bonds even though the school district is abolished through consolidation into another school district. Under the other interpretation, the new consolidated school district becomes responsible for the bonds of the original school districts outstanding at the date of the consolidation. Under this interpretation, if you live in a school district that has no outstanding bonds and your school district is consolidated with one or more districts that do have outstanding bonds, then you will be taxed after the consolidation to pay for the principal and interest of those bonds of the other school districts.

Your tax bill will include a tax for at least one and probably two school districts. If you live in a unit school district, which is a district providing both elementary and high school education, you will pay only one school tax. Otherwise, you will pay a tax for an elementary school district and a high school district, or, if you live in a rural area that is not in a high school district, you will pay a tax for an elementary school district and a nonhigh school district.

All school districts outside of Chicago, except those with a population of fewer than 1,000 inhabitants, are subject to the provisions of the Illinois municipal budget law. Under this law, a school district is required to adopt a combined annual budget and appropriation ordinance within or before the first quarter of each fiscal year. In most districts of the state, the fiscal year begins July 1, so that the budget and appropriation ordinance would have to be adopted before the fourth Tuesday in September, the deadline date for certifying the levy to the township treasurer.

The budget must contain a statement of cash on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year, an estimate of expenditures contemplated for such fiscal year, and an estimate of cash expected to be on hand at the end of the year. It must specify the purposes for which appropriations are made, and the amount appropriated for each purpose.

The tentative budget must be made convenient to public inspection for at least one week prior to final action thereon. At least one public hearing shall be held on the budget and appropriation ordinance. Notice of such hearing shall be given at least one week prior to such hearing by publication in a newspaper circulated in the district or, if there is no such newspaper, notice of the hearing must be posted in five of the most public places in the district.

Every school district in the state may levy a tax for educational purposes. Every school district which has a building may levy a tax for building purposes. The last general assembly brought all school districts having a population of more than 1,000 under the Illinois municipal retirement act and authorized the levy of a tax to cover the school board's contribution to this retirement fund for nonteaching personnel. If a bond issue is authorized by election, taxes must also be levied against property in the district for the purpose of paying off such bonded indebtedness.

Generally, the largest share of your tax bill is to provide education through the 12th grade (senior high school). Your taxes for this purpose have been steadily increasing. There has been a tremendously effective nationwide propaganda campaign to build public sentiment for more money for schools, more pay for teachers. There is a growing feeling that the emphasis should rather be—more money for better schools, better pay for better teachers, a better product of better citizens.

Free Ride For You—
on the Freedom Train!

We had a real thrill in Our Town just the other day—when the Freedom Train stopped by!

You've heard about it, of course—an actual train that's touring the country to remind us again what true Democracy means. It carries such Americana as the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, and other immortal documents that guarantee every citizen his liberty.

A great idea! And from where I sit, we're all riding along with that Freedom Train—right now—by living in a country that protects our individual liberties—whether they apply to our right to vote, to choose our church, to speak our minds, or enjoy a glass of beer with friends.

Only thing is—we've got to prove ourselves worthy of the ride... by guarding zealously against whatever forces of intolerance encroach upon our American concepts of live-and-let-live, in a free and strong Democracy!

Agriculture and Industry are Partners In Chicago and Northern Illinois

THE LOCATION of Chicago and Northern Illinois has made it the world center for food processing and farm implement production. A billion dollars worth of food is processed annually here in the heart of the nation's greatest hog-raising and cattle-feeding area.

The first beef was packed for shipment to Detroit in 1832, the hides being utilized for trunks, saddles and harness. The growing influx of grain, cattle, hogs and other products from the farms soon led to the establishment of other branches of manufacturing—milling, soap and candle-making, lard rendering, glue manufacture and cooperage.

Supplying Farm Machinery to the World

John Deere's development of the steel plow in Grand Detour and Cyrus McCormick's decision to move the manufacture of his celebrated reaper to Chicago inaugurated the agricultural implement industry here. Today this area is the largest producer of farm machinery in the world.

Due in great measure to the city's growth, as the natural railway center of the Middle West, and the invention of the refrigerator car in 1874, Chicago became the hub of the American meat packing industry. Since the opening of the Union Stock Yards in 1865, it has received nearly one billion meat animals. By 1885, its purchases exceeded a million dollars a day. In Illinois alone, farmers have derived more than 40 per cent of their total income over the years from meat and meat products.

Ingenuous utilization of the by-products of the meat industry allowed the early packers to market meat at lower prices than local butchers in the East could offer. Early by-products were lard, tallow, brushes, Prussian blue, bone black, beef gall, beef extract, glycerine, gelatin, fertilizer and glue. Today, the processing of by-products is so specialized that the farmer usually receives more for the live beef he markets than the packer realizes from the sale of meat from the animal. By-products from meat packing now add at least 200 million dollars annually to Chicago industries. A few examples of such by-products are feeds, felt goods, leather and sheep-lined clothing, manufacturing bones, athletic goods and pharmaceuticals, for which the glands of the animals supply insulin, adrenalin, thyroid extract and many other remedies.

Several large private laboratories in Chicago and Northern Illinois are developing non-food utilization of farm crops and residues in this huge grain distributing and trading center. The Department of Agriculture's Research Laboratory in Northern Illinois, which discovered a way of multiplying penicillin production 200 times during wartime experiments, is now seeking new uses for corn, soybeans and wheat.

Still More Uses for By-Products

More than fifty products are already manufactured from corn. Illinois has four of the nation's eleven corn refining plants, including one of the largest in the world. From soybeans, in which Illinois is a leader in production, are derived paints, plastics, varnish, soap, linoleum and oilcloth, as well as many edible products.

Learning long ago the value of interdependence between city and farm, the Chicago and Northern Illinois area is, and always will be, part and partner of the world's richest agricultural empire—the valley of the Upper Mississippi and the great plains beyond.

New Foot-Mouth Disease Vaccine

Efforts of the Argentine Republic to control foot and mouth disease with a newly developed vaccine are attracting attention from authorities now attempting to stop the spread of this infection in Mexico. Incident to a U. S. government announcement that vaccination would be used in an attempt to curb foot and mouth disease in Mexican livestock, Argentine veterinary officials reported they have used a newly developed intradermal vaccine to immunize cattle and sheep against the disease. Among a million cattle and sheep thus immunized, 93 per cent were completely protected against infection for six months or longer, but the vaccine was not effective in hogs. They said this new product gives cattle and sheep quicker, better, and more prolonged immunity at lower cost than other vaccines now in use.

There's No Limit to Work Day For Mayor of Many Interests

WNU Features.

WOOD RIVER, ILL. — The mayor of Wood River (population 8,197) is a man of two titles, five jobs, unbounded enthusiasm and a complete disregard for the limits of a 24-hour day.

As mayor of the bustling Midwestern town, 35-year-old Lavier D. Humphrey puts on his "executive hat" and, like mayors the country over, deliberates highway improvements, tax rates, police affairs and garbage disposal.

Then he switches to dungarees and an oil worker's safety helmet for his eight hour a day job as operator in Shell Oil company's refinery in neighboring Roxana. Starting with the company as a laborer in 1933, Humphrey has worked up to his present job as an operator in the lubricating oil plant.

Donning a worn but serviceable baseball cap—symbolic of his intense interest in youth of the town—Humphrey turns to his third major interest, that of providing suitable recreation facilities for Wood River youngsters. He has established supervised playgrounds for youngsters of all ages and currently is sponsoring the conversion of a 15-acre corn field into a ball park and recreation center.

The mayor's fourth activity—the one of which he secretly is most proud—is his famed Junior G-Man club, first of its kind in the country. Humphrey and Police Chief Frank Starkey formed the club after youngsters caused $500 damage to municipal property during Halloween night festivities in 1944. Club members cooperate actively with police; they report parking violations, speeders, red light crashers; they unmask a peeping tom always one look ahead of police, and they aided in detecting a gang of vandals who were breaking into the local high school. Since the club was organized, Halloween damage has dropped to less than $25.

Humphrey admits, however, that his fifth job is the hardest: The coordination of all his activities within the limits of a 24-hour day. Under a Shell policy encouraging employees to participate in civic activities, Humphrey often finds himself wearing the mantle of each of his jobs at once.

Between sandwich bites during lunch hour in the refinery, he may hear a citizen's complaint that his neighbor's children get up too early, study a report on speeders from a trusted G-Man lieutenant, review the latest set of ball park plans and even go over his own refinery reports.

Enthusiasm is this young Midwesterner's main trait—a contagious enthusiasm of rolled up sleeves, hard work and the deep satisfaction that comes from accomplishment.

Country Doctor Prescribes for Self—It's School

HARRISBURG, PA.—The country doctor in Pennsylvania has returned to school to learn the latest progress in the medical field. This new venture in medical education, never attempted previously anywhere in the world, has been hailed as a "pattern for other states."

Sponsored by Pennsylvania Medical society, the project has been accorded an enthusiastic reception by some 840 physicians of small towns and rural areas.

"Students" attend one eight-hour class a week in the nearest of six centrally located instruction centers. Teaching centers at present are in Allentown, Harrisburg, Johnstown, Oil City, Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport. The course extends for 10 weeks.

Instructors are medical experts from leading training institutions of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. They lecture morning, afternoon and evening on the latest know-how in medicine. Practical phases of diagnosis and treatment are covered, instructors explaining the best techniques known to the medical profession.

Of the 840 doctors who took the opening course 580 were general practitioners, most of them from small communities and rural areas. Sixty-two were specialists in internal medicine, 61 were surgeons, 32 were obstetricians and gynecologists and 25 were neuro-psychiatrists.

"This program has proved that the general practitioner, especially the typical country doctor, seeks to keep himself abreast of the latest progress in medicine," Dr. Charles W. Smith, chairman of the medical society's graduate education committee, said in commenting on success of the venture.

His Honor

Like mayors the country over, Lavier D. Humphrey finds many responsibilities attached to the job of being chief executive of the bustling little city of Wood River, Ill. The routine of handling civic affairs, however, is relieved when he is called upon frequently to serve as peacemaker in settling neighborly squabbles.

Works, Too

Losing his official dignity, Humphrey is known as "Humpty" at the Shell refinery, where he works in a section of the lubricating oil plant. Most of his working day is spent in front of a complicated control board bristling with dials, knobs and recording instruments which keep tab on the plant's operations.

At Play

One of his honor's favorite relaxations is to listen to his wife play the piano—not the fast new swing tunes, but the old ones, Viennese waltzes, Victor Herbert, Sigmund Romberg, Son Don, 13, and a daughter, Laniece, 11, also join the family group for frequent evenings of music.

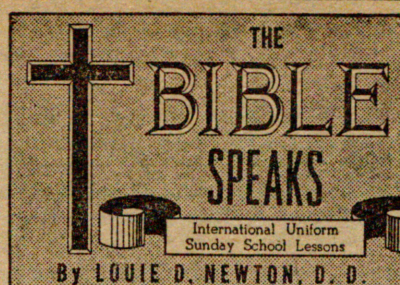

Human, After All

Back in high school, Humphrey set a record for the mile which lasted until 1947. He has been a fast-moving man of action ever since. Rugged as he is, however, he occasionally tires from the strain at the refinery and city hall. When the pace does catch up with him, it's usually in this living room chair.

No Problem for Him

BURLINGTON, VT. — Stricken with laryngitis, Prof. Robert S. Long of University of Vermont thought of canceling his classes. Then he had a better idea. He whispered his lecture into a recording machine which he carried to the classroom and turned on full blast.

Christian Fellowship

Lesson for February 22, 1948

GEORGE WASHINGTON was a splendid example of Christian fellowship. If you will travel through the older portion of the United States, particularly in Virginia, you will come upon numerous instances of church pews marked as follows, "George Washington worshipped in this pew on blank date." Evidently, it was his custom to attend public worship in whatever community he spent the Lord's day.

Dr. Newton

Thus he entered into Christian fellowship, gaining a blessing and rendering a blessing.

The lesson passage for Sunday is found in Acts 2:37-47 and Ephesians 4:1-6, with several other passages which will be quoted before we finish the column for this week.

A HAPPY TIME IN CHURCH

READ Acts 2:41-47, and you will find a picture of a group of very happy people. Think of it, three thousand people professing faith in Jesus and receiving baptism in one day! But read on—they were not only happy at church, but they were happy because they were in the church. They continued steadfastly in the apostles' teachings and fellowship and breaking of bread and prayer.

They praised God and had favor with all the people. By their daily living they were convincing the world that fellowship in Christ is not only good on Sunday while we are at the meeting house, but good every day.

The happy homes are the homes where Christian fellowship abounds, and it is equally true in every area of life.

AT CHURCH WITH FRIENDS

"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of the Lord," Psalm 122:1.

THAT is poetry, you will agree, but it is also actual testimony not only of the Psalmist, but of countless junior boys and girls throughout our land who eagerly await the sound of the church bells. Boys and girls delight to go to Sunday school and worship when the life of the church is pervaded with Christian fellowship. There they meet the finest boys and girls in the community.

BELONGING TO THE CHURCH

THE passage in Acts 2:37-47 tells us how certain people, after hearing the great sermon by Peter, asked how they might be saved. He told them:

"Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit."

When we invite intermediate friends to attend Sunday school and worship services with us, and they come to know of the love of God, they, too, will want to be saved. It is then the high privilege of Christian boys and girls to lead their friends to accept Jesus Christ as Saviour, and come into the church.

In Ephesians 4:4-6, we read these words: "There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to the one hope that belongs to your call, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all, who is above all and through all and in all."

ALL ONE IN CHRIST

THE above passage from Ephesians teaches clearly that there is a brotherhood of man, real and abiding, when we accept the Fatherhood of God, through Jesus Christ. This is the meaning of the church. No amount of man-made creeds can save us. No amount of ritual and ceremony can save us. We are saved by grace through faith, and that is the gift of God. When we repent of our sins and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, we are saved, and not until then.

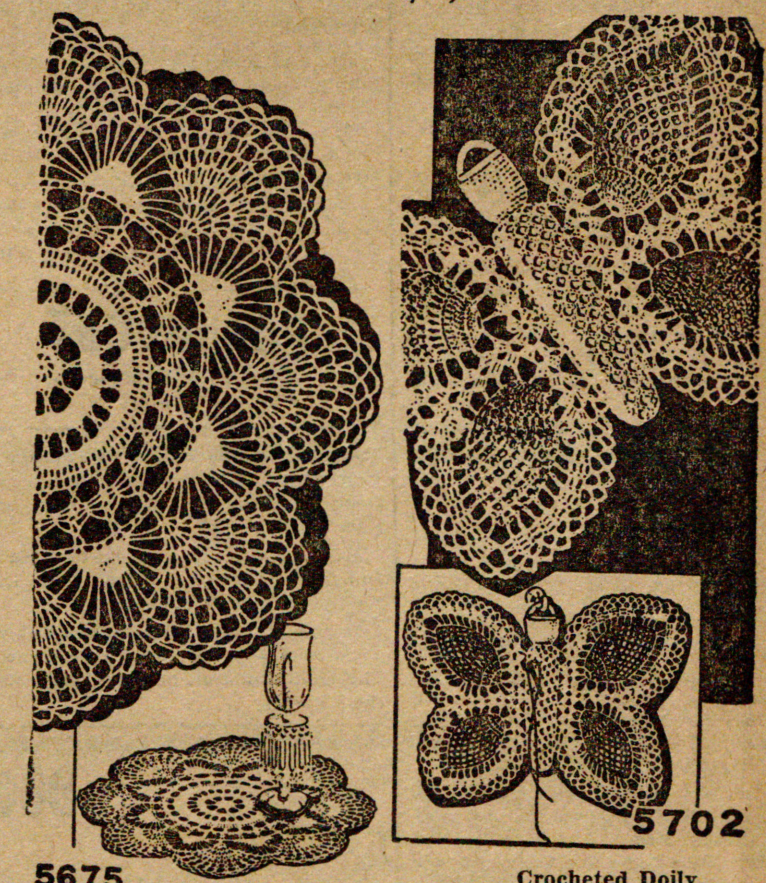

The one adequate solvent for the crying needs of this frightened world is the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. Just as thousands were saved on Pentecost and again on the Lord's Day when Peter preached in Solomon's porch, so today many may be saved where the Gospel is proclaimed in its simplicity and power.

We are one in Christ, of every race and every tongue. The fellowship of Christian faith transcends every barrier — racial, economic, geographic, political, religious. We have but to proclaim the universality of this good news—proclaim it in our words and proclaim it in our daily lives. The world waits wistfully for the encompassing fellowship that is in Christ and in Christ alone.

Urges Attention To Winter Calf Rations

Failure of farmers to feed enough Vitamin D to calves born in the fall often results in rickets. According to veterinary authorities, owners will save themselves plenty of trouble by taking time out now to check up on the Vitamin D, calcium, and phosphorus content of their calf rations for winter—and add sufficient amounts of these elements where necessary. When calves do not get enough sunshine or some substitute form of vitamin D, or when their diet is deficient in minerals, their bones become so weak that they break under even slight strain. The usual symptoms of rickets are arched back, enlargement of the ends of the long bones, and slow growth.

WARN WEED KILLERS MAY POISON LIVESTOCK

Predicted widespread use of chemical weed killers on farms this spring has prompted a warning from veterinary authorities on the dangers of livestock poisoning. In a bulletin just issued, farmers are cautioned to "read label instructions carefully" and to take steps to protect their animals if there is any possibility that the weed-destroying chemical employed is poisonous. At least one weed killer, has been shown to be harmless to animals in the concentrations ordinarily used for spraying weeds, but it is possible that certain other products may not afford such a high margin of safety, the bulletin pointed out.

Dr. Woelfer Urges Good Care for Cows

Often called the "foster mother of the human race," the dairy cow deserves good care, says Dr. E. A. Woelfer, University of Illinois college of veterinary medicine.

Though the cow is one of the hardest working animals on the farm, she is often sadly neglected during the winter months. She cannot be expected to be a high producer if she is forced to stand out in the cold and rain when a warm, dry barn or shed is the only fitting place for her.

Dr. Woelfer also gives several other pointers wise farmers should observe in caring for the dairy cows during the winter months:

1. Take good care of her milk-giving equipment. If her udder becomes swollen and inflamed or shows other evidence of mastitis, have a veterinarian check it immediately so that she will continue to be a producer.
2. Protect her against barnyard filth by keeping the lots well drained.
3. Provide plenty of clean bedding in sunny, well-ventilated quarters. Don't make her stand and lie in soiled bedding in dark, dirty quarters where she and other diseases and parasites, may become a victim of mastitis, lice, etc.
4. Give her leafy green legume hay, quality supplements, and an ample supply of clean, chill-free water. She can't produce her best when fed only poor-quality hay, straw, or cornstalks and a handful of grain.

CATALOGS

By MRS. ESTHER VAN WIE

They are in the mall, on your dining room table, your library, tool house; even at the breakfast table the contents of the seed catalog are being discussed pro and con. Vegetables, old and new varieties, flowers, shrubs, anything your heart desires, but do take heed and plan that garden. Buy only what seeds you will need, plant what you like, but do add a few of the newer kinds. Give much thought to your plan. A well planned, well-planted garden is a joy to you and sometimes shows up your neighbors! A well-tended garden brings you results, more than you can use, so you can share some with those who have not.

Gardening is a disease, once you really have it, and can't be cured for some time, if you really love working in the garden. So catalogs have their part in the winter months, when the garden is dormant and resting under that blanket of mulch and snow. A wealth of material for you to read and study! What a help for the Amateur gardener!

Spirochetosis, a poultry disease that causes great losses in some foreign countries, is being pointed up as a possible new problem for American poultrymen.

"Recent reports from California and Texas, describing the disease in chickens and turkeys, suggest that poultry growers and veterinarians should keep close watch for the appearance of this disease elsewhere," the American Veterinary Medical Association stated.

In a bulletin just issued, the association said the germ of this disease is a spirochete that invades the blood stream. It causes birds to become dull and listless and usually produces diarrhea, fever, intense thirst, ruffled feathers, emaciation, paralysis, and finally death in a large percentage of cases.

"The fowl tick, prevalent in many southern and southwestern states, is a vector of spirochetosis. It is important, therefore, that producers maintain extra vigilance against this disease in places where fowl ticks are troublesome," the bulletin advised.

Soil Proves Best
Medicine for Pigs

Swine producers need to get "down to earth"—literally—if they want to raise more and healthier pigs.

This is the advice contained in a research progress report, issued by the American Veterinary Medical Association, on the part played by iron in preventing baby pig anemia.

"For years, veterinarians have been telling swine growers that the best way to prevent anemia in baby pigs raised in confinement is to let them have access to a small heap of rich, clean soil in the pen," the report stated. "And now, important research has proved that fact and shown the reason behind it."

In a comprehensive series of tests made by veterinary research workers, several means were used to supply iron to pigs, in order to find the easiest and the best way of furnishing enough of this mineral to help prevent anemia and support growth.

The workers fed large doses of the mineral to sows during pregnancy, to see if youngsters could be born with enough iron in their bodies to tide them over the first few weeks of life—but it didn't work. Then they fed iron to lactating sows, to see if the sows would give greater amounts of it in their milk—but that didn't work either.

Satisfactory results were obtained when they dosed the baby pigs with the mineral during the first three weeks of life, but that procedure was time-consuming and raised the costs of production.

In the final stage of the test, they gave the pigs access to soil, and they were astonished to observe how much of it each pig consumed. One of the animals was sacrificed and examined, and nearly one and a half ounces of soil was recovered from its stomach. This amount yielded over seven times as much iron as is needed daily to prevent anemia and support growth.

U. S. Charged with
Messing Up
Cattle Ills War

A national veterinary journal issued a hard-hitting criticism this week of U. S. government information services and of what it termed "a case of too many government agencies deciding what should be told about the foot and mouth disease campaign below the border."

Specific reference was made to a recent U. S. Department of Agriculture press announcement that plan of vaccination and quarantine of cattle would largely replace slaughter operations in the Mexican foot and mouth disease campaign. That announcement abruptly followed a series of USDA news releases which created an illusion of success and gave no indication the slaughter program was failing.

The Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association, which is an official spokesman for the veterinary profession in North America, said that this nation's public, and especially livestock producers, had not been told the true facts about the cooperative U. S. Mexican foot and mouth disease program, which has already cost U. S. taxpayers about 35 million dollars.

The Journal questioned whether the "diplomatic and political aspects of the situation" were too delicate to allow plain talk on the problem and disclosure of the real facts to the American public.

Implying that State Department policies may have influenced the tone of the USDA releases, the Journal warned, "Foot and mouth disease is no respecter of diplomatic secrecy and formalities any more than it is of international borders." Government leaders were cautioned that "plain talk and all the facts should be the order of things from now on" in reporting on this disease. Any other policy, declared the Journal, will endanger the nation's livestock industry and lower the prestige of the government.

Cattle Grubs May Attack Horses

The heel fly or grub is usually thought of only as a parasite of cattle, but new veterinary reports show that this trouble-maker also may infest horses.

Heel flies unable to find a cow will sometimes deposit their eggs on a horse. These eggs, usually laid in the hairs just above the hoof, hatch into larvae within a few days, bore into the skin, and months later they emerge as grubs by way of the horse's back, just as they do in cattle. Horses so affected cannot be ridden, as pressure from the saddle crushes the grubs and causes severe inflammation.

"Parasitism of horses by cattle grubs is not common and is probably accidental," states a bulletin issued by veterinary authorities, "but it is nevertheless a threat that should be recognized by horse owners."

Owners are urged to make a routine winter inspection of their horses and to remove grubs found emerging from the skin, preferably by using a suction cup. Grubs also may be removed by gentle pressure, but great care must be taken not to crush them. Elimination of grubs in cattle by spraying them with rotenone preparations also serves to prevent the spread of these parasites to horses.

Experts Advise: Use Weed Killer Carefully

SPECIALISTS TELL OF VALUES OF NEW SCIENCE FOR FARMERS

New Blessings Can Become Destructive by Negligence

One of the greatest blessings coming to farmers in recent times is the weed killer. All farmers will agree to that. The weed killer is a time-saver. It cuts costs. It increases profits.

But there's one thing farmers must watch, according to authorities. That thing is being oversold by enthusiastic salesmen. Always remember that the job of a paid salesman is to sell. He is not, usually, a chemist; he has not had the basic work of developing the product. He takes the producer's viewpoint, and he will glow with enthusiasm; he would be a poor salesman who did not honestly sell all he could.

Do not go beyond the instructions issued by the manufacturer. Do not try to "stretch" the material, but use exactly as directions specify. Do not think to do an extra good job by increasing the dosage. Stick to instructions, to the letter, experts advise; buy reputable products.

The following is reproduced from a bulletin prepared by Associate Professor R. F. Fuelleman of crop production, George E. McKibben, first assistant, agricultural research; Fred Slife, assistant crop production, University of Illinois college of agriculture:

The use of chemicals to control and kill weeds has caught the imagination of more people than has any other method used within the past three decades. The chemicals responsible for this popularity are the 2, 4-Dichlorophenoxyacetic acid, or 2-4-D, compounds. Because some observing research man noted that weeds died after some of the drifting spray from this chemical had fallen on them, a multitude of 2-4-D and other chemicals are being marketed today.

Research to determine the effectiveness of 2-4-D chemicals in controlling weeds has now progressed to the point where it is possible to make some recommendations for their use. Some of the recommendations must be made with reservations, however, because plants react differently under varying climatic conditions, soil type, and fertility. The effectiveness of the results will also depend on the quantity of the chemical used; because the amount needed is very small, too high a concentration may not be so efficient as a weaker concentration.

Because 2-4-D acid is not readily soluble in water, it has been combined with sodium and ammonium to increase solubility; it is also used as a butyl, ethyl, and in various other ester forms, as well as in the form of amines. The esters can be mixed with water and oil, but the sodium and other mineral compounds are most effective in water solutions.

2-4-D is sold under various trade names by a large number of companies. All packages give the concentration and directions for mixing and using. It is best to follow the manufacturer's directions for they are usually based on research and experience.

Although 2-4-D is the most popular chemical now being used to control weeds, some compounds of the di-nitro group may be used for specific weeds, particularly annuals. Ammonium sulfamate (Anmate) is used for woody plants, particularly poison ivy, brambles, briars, honeysuckles, etc. This chemical will affect all of the vegetation to which it is applied, but it seems particularly effective on poison ivy. Another chemical, Isopropyl-phenyl carbamate (IPC), which is more or less in the experimental stage, is being used on quack grass. Still other compounds, also in the experimental stage, are the phenyl mercuric acetates for use on crabgrass. Oil emulsions and petroleum products are also being used to control weeds in field and garden crops.

Effect of 2-4-D on Crop and Garden Plants

The 2-4-D compounds either kill or retard the growth and flowering of most broad-leaved plants other than grasses. Clovers and alfalfa will either be killed or severely injured. Garden beans are extremely susceptible to the chemical—so much so that they are used as indicator plants to test toxicity. Soybeans are also susceptible. Flowering garden plants either die or do not flower. Bulbs of all types are affected by 2-4-D, and care should be taken to prevent spray material from drifting onto bulb plants or other prized flowers. Although evergreens and shrubbery may not be killed, they will shed their leaves and their development will be retarded. The mustards, including cabbage, radish, turnips, rutabaga, cauliflower, etc., are easily killed in the early stages of growth; the wild mustards succumb readily to 2-4-D even in the flowering stage. Berry plants and shrubs, including strawberry, currant, gooseberry, and raspberry of different types may be killed, but if not killed they will often not bear fruit if sprayed with 2-4-D.

The effect of 2-4-D on corn and the small grains has been the subject of much research during the past year. Although results have varied, they have indicated the potentialities of the chemical for control of weeds in corn. Different hybrids react differently to the spray, but it is difficult to see these differences when the crop is mature.

All grasses except the bentgrasses are tolerant of 2-4-D. Because the bentgrasses are closely mowed and have a shallow root system, they apparently absorb too much chemical in the budding area. Although the top growth of a specie like Kentucky bluegrass may show some yellowing, it recovers rapidly, partly because of the protected buds near the ground.

Sprays containing 2-4-D do not appreciably affect quackgrass, foxtail, barnyard grass, nutgrass, or any of the other grass weeds after they have passed the seedling stage. Legume seedlings in grain fields are usually seriously injured by 2-4-D. When broad-leaved weeds occur in legume seedings, the di-nitro compounds can be used for control.

ALFALFA FOR BROOD SOWS

In spite of repeated advice to farmers that sows must be given substantial amounts of alfalfa to build healthy litters, many hog producers are failing to heed this advice, says the American Veterinary Medical association. "Countless numbers of pigs, and inestimable profits, are being lost every year by producers who disregard the nutritional needs of their herds," this group declares. It is suggested that throughout the gestation period the sow should receive 15 percent to 30 percent of alfalfa hay or meal along with balancing amounts of ground corn and oats, plus a high-quality protein supplement. Access to good pasture also should be provided whenever possible.

An Open Letter

To Our Farmer Customers . . .

Dear Friends:

You owe it to yourself to KNOW THE TRUTH about 2-4-D and weed control on the farm.

The astonishing results already achieved indicate that the spraying of chemicals will very soon be one of the outstanding practices in modern farming. The conflicting reports and manufacturers' claims, however, have done little except confuse the farmer and user.

We are taking this opportunity to invite all of you (yes, wives and children too) to join us in discussing this important subject on the evening of Thursday, February 26 at the Tinley Park Public School. We would like to analyze the problems as they will apply to the average farm in this community; to call your attention to the dangers and pitfalls in spraying for weed control, as well as pointing out the many advantages.

Mr. Paul E. Burdett of Lombard, Ill., one of the leading authorities in northern Illinois, will lead the discussion, with movies used to illustrate his talk. He will outline the recommendations as set up at the recent Weed Control Conference held at Topeka, Kansas, as well as the recommendations from Iowa State College and the University of Illinois. He will attempt to give you the fundamental, underlying facts which will allow you to judge the possibilities for your own operations. Your questions will be welcomed.

This meeting will be held at the Tinley Park Public School, at 8:00 P. M., February 26. We consider it a distinct privilege to bring this educational program to you, and hope that you will be our guests next Thursday evening.

Very truly yours,

W. W. Mancke
